II. TERRACOTTA ART

The soft red soils from the riverbed are gently coaxed by the potters hands into utility items as well as contemporary decorative pieces. The potter moulds the pliant soil from the rivers upper layer into gentle curves and shapes, baking them in a slow fire when dry. Once ready he colours them in deep sienna tones with soil from the deeper layers of the river bed. His nimble hands create pots or matkas, elephants, horses and lamps.

In this presented research work, use only lightweight Terracotta art and cover the art piece with the help of chemicals for the purpose of durability. Some Terracotta art that was done in the garment is as follows:
